Individual adversely affected. 1045. An individual who is adversely affected by the prevailing rules governing award and payment of a pension may claim to receive pension under the rules applicable to him when he joined the service.

Family Pension and Gratuity

To whom allowed. 1046. Family pensions are at the rates given in paragraph 1053 are admissible to the recognized heirs of all Indian officers, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men, as well as of non-combatant departmental and regulated employees and followers engaged by or on behalf of Government in a military capacity, who die under certain conditions.

Persons of relationship admissible as heirs. 1047. To be eligible for pension an heir must be related to the deceased in one of the following degrees:—

- 1st, Son, natural and legitimate.
- 2nd, Widow, lawfully married by a valid ceremony.
- 3rd, Daughter, natural and legitimate.
- 4th, Father.
- 5th, Mother.

Succession of heir. 1048. Any individual of the classes mentioned in paragraph 1046, the families of which are eligible for pension, has the right to nominate any one of the members of his family mentioned in paragraph 1047 as his heir to the succession of the pension.

If no nomination is made by such individual, the pension will be allowed to the living relative nearest to the last given in paragraph 1047, unless such relative is disqualified, when it can be given to the next in order.

Term on which granted. 1049. The grant of family pension is for life, subject to the following restrictions:—

- (a) A pension is given to a son until the age of 16 only, unless he is a cripple or otherwise unable to support himself, in which case it can be given for life.
- (b) A pension is given to a father only after the age of 60, but then for life; before that age for life only if a cripple or otherwise unable to support himself.
- (c) A pension cannot be transferred. It ceases altogether on the death of the original recipient.

- (e) The same individual cannot hold two Government pensions at the same time. The pension least advantageous to the individual must be surrendered.
- (f) A pension merges in the pay of any appointment under Government; but if such pension exceeds such pay the excess will accrue the half of such pension in addition to pay. On discharge from such appointment the pension becomes admissible.

Note.—Officers employing pensions should communicate the fact to the next officer concerned.

Higher and lower rates. 1050. Family pensions are admissible at a higher or at a lower rate, according to the nature of death of the individual.

The higher rate is granted to the heir of an individual who:—

- (a) While in the performance of his duty, is killed in action.
- (b) Within 5 years of being wounded in action, while in the performance of his duty, dies of such wounds.

Note.—An individual who is killed or dies of wounds caused by persons from whom, in the performance of his duty, a risk is incurred equal to the mentioned in sub-section, is entitled to receive under (a) or (b) above.

The lower rate is granted to the heir of an individual who:—

- (a) dies from disease, the result of active operations in the field, or of foreign service, within 5 years after having been first removed from duty on account of such disease, provided the disease is certified to have commenced during, and to be due to, such operations or foreign service;
- (b) dies in consequence of wounds or injuries received in the performance of military duty otherwise than in action, within 5 years of having been so wounded or injured.

Note.—(a) Such cases of death must not be due to the individual's own imprudence. No pension is granted in the case of an individual committing suicide while sane.

(b) Military service in any country or previous service must count as foreign service for an individual who is a native of that country or previous.

Gratuity may be deducted from family pension. 1051. When an individual, who has been discharged with a gratuity, dies subsequently from causes which entitle his heir to a pension, the amount of gratuity will be deducted from that pension.

Subsequent pension. 1052. Family pension is granted in accordance with the status of the individual at the time of his death or discharge from the service. Promotion or increase of pay granted after an individual has been so discharged, or is known to have assumed office on active or foreign service, does not entitle the heir to a higher pension.

The heir of an Indian officer, non-commissioned officer, or soldier who received promotion for distinguished conduct in the field, or for distinguished gallantry in circumstances entailing a risk equivalent to that attaching to active service, such as the destruction of the Government of India, remains in pension attaching to the rank to which such individual was promoted.

1022. Family pensions are granted, at the following monthly rates:

NOTE.—The family products of Spinosuchus are highly variable, and moreover, the high level rate of pay will be determined by the size of pay allowable to be received by a corresponding classification serving in posts in the French.

1974. In the case of temporary public followers, who are engaged on high sums of pay for a particular service, if they are killed in action, or die of wounds during the course of the operations, or in the latter case before being discharged, their heirs are entitled to pension at the 4 per cent rate.

If the hair is desired, or difficulties exist for paying such a regular period, the capitalized value of the residue may be paid in lieu of pension.

1473. If private officers of the secret class, authorized to be taken on active service are killed or die of wounds or disease attributable to such active service, within one year of their return from such active service, their heirs are entitled to pension at the rate of No. 3 per annum.

1870. In addition to the grant of the higher rate of family pension to the heir of an Indian officer or Justice Sub Assistant Magistrate ranking as such, who, included in action, or died of wounds received in action (see paragraph 1870 and 1871), a gratuity of one year's pay on the scale laid down in paragraph 1870 is payable to the heir.

1071. An individual who is adversely affected by the preceding rules regarding family pension can choose to exercise certain rights under the rules applicable when the deceased joined the service.

Plague Regulations in force in the Presidency Town.

Whereas certain parts of the Presidency of Madras are visited by, and the City of Madras is threatened with, an outbreak of plague, and whereas the ordinary provisions of the law for the time being in force in the City are insufficient for the purpose of preventing the outbreak or spread of the disease:

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 2, sub-section (1), of the Epidemic Diseases Act, 1907, and delegated to him under sub-section (2) of the same section by the notification of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 2246 of the 22nd December 1904, the Governor of Port St. George in Council is pleased to provide, in pursuance of all regulations previously made on this subject, the following temporary regulations to be observed in the City of Madras for a period of two years from the 1st day of February 1915:—

1. In these regulations,

(a) "Acts under observation" means any area which may be notified by the Governor in Council under these regulations to be under observation as a source of its being immediately threatened with plague;

(b) "Infected area" means any area which may be notified under these regulations by the Governor in Council, as, subject to his control, by the Collector of a district or the President of the Madras Corporation, to be infected with plague;

(c) "Notification station" means any railway station or other station which may be notified in such manner under these regulations by the Governor in Council;

3. The Governor in Council may, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette, declare the City of Madras or any portion thereof to be infected with plague if one or more indigenous cases of plague have occurred in it or the existence of plague among rats has been proved by bacteriological tests. In cases of emergency the President of the Corporation may act by resolution and by publication in the local papers, as soon as possible thereafter, that the City or any portion thereof is infected with plague. The Governor in Council may in the same manner notify as a notification station any railway station or other place in the City, which is liable to be used or passed by persons leaving the City.

4. In areas under observation and infected areas every householder and every medical practitioner who finds or becomes aware of the dying of a dead rat in his house or in any public or private dwelling or place within the limits of the City shall be bound to give information of the fact with the least practicable delay to the nearest local authority.

5. In areas under observation and infected areas, the President may close existing markets and may appoint special places where markets may be held and may prohibit trade beyond which it shall not be lawful for persons bringing articles for sale from or to an infected area to pass.

6. In areas under observation and infected areas the President may direct that scavengers of refuse from plague-infected areas and that loading, unloading, railway goods-trains, and barriers used for traffic or goods shall be inspected; and that all rats found therein shall be killed and burnt, and the place or place disinfected.

7. When the City has become infected the President, or plague officer, may order that any shed used for the accumulation of refuse and filth to harbour rats shall be closed and shall not be re-opened without his permission.

8. When the City is infected with plague the President may prohibit that no person undertaking for him the cleaning of clothing or other laundry process shall store or wash or otherwise deal with clothing except at such place and at such time and under such conditions as he may direct.

9. (a) When the City is infected the President, or a plague officer with the previous sanction of the President, may order the evacuation and disinfection of infected houses and houses in their neighbourhood, or generally of any infected locality; and no person shall re-occupy such house or locality without the express permission of the President or plague officer.

(b) The President, or plague officer, may require the infected people to reside in such place as he may appoint, under such restrictions as he may deem necessary.

(c) The President, or plague officer, may make such arrangements as he thinks fit for the custody, loss of charge, or the effects of persons so ordered, provided that the Government shall not be responsible for any loss or damage to them.

Exemption.—Houses and localities in which plague-infected rats have been discovered may be treated as infected.

10. When any part of the City is infected the President, with the previous sanction of Government, may organize search parties to visit houses for the purpose of detecting cases of plague, when there is reason to believe that the residents are attempting to conceal them.

The notification-holder shall on reaching his destination deliver the paper by post or by hand to the local authority. The notification-holder and the householder, hotel-keeper or person in charge of the building shall also report to such authority any unusual mortality among rats or any case of fever, or plague, or suspicious sudden illness occurring within one month of the arrival of the notification-holder at the house or building in which he resides.

Endorsement.—In the case of insusceptible persons and persons who are under medical supervision, the duty of complying with this regulation shall devolve on their guardians.

13. (a) When a festival or fair or other public gathering which is likely to be attended by persons from plague-infected ports is about to take place in an unincorporated part of the City, the President may apply to the Government for orders to prohibit attendance thereat and to enforce the prohibition by stopping temporarily the issue of railway tickets or by other means. A similar course may be adopted when a festival or fair or other public gathering, which is likely to be attended by persons from healthy ports, is about to take place in a plague-infected part of the City.

19. If the President or health officer is of opinion that the destruction of any lot or shed is necessary to prevent the spread of plague, he may summarily take measures for the destruction of such lot or shed and the materials of which it is constructed.

20. The President or health officer, or assistant health officer, the medical officer attending a plague case or a sanitary inspector or a plague inspector, may during the outbreak, in his opinion, require disinfection; provided that a notice ordering upon the owner or tenant of such house to open his house before a specified time shall have been served on him, or posted on some conspicuous part of the building, and the house has not been opened accordingly; and provided also that no little drawings as possible shall be caused to the house on the act of opening. Conditions of Auction Sale.

II. The districts in which independent ankar shops, foreign liquor licenses, beer shops and opian shops, respectively, will be sold are specified below:—

Independent ankar shops.	Foreign liquor licenses.	Beer shops.	Single shops.	Opian shops.
From 1st April 1916.
Throughout the entire trade of the Presidency including the European ports.	In all districts except Coimbatore, Bangalore, Mysore, Madras, Tanjore, Tiruchirappalli, Karaikal, Pondicherry, and South Canara.	In all districts except Coimbatore, Bangalore, Madras, Tanjore, Tiruchirappalli and South Canara.	Throughout the Presidency.	Throughout the Presidency.

Ankar and opian licenses shall be sold for all districts. Particulars regarding them will be found in clause XVI below. A separate notification will be issued regarding land for foreign liquor licenses.

III. A deposit must be made by each bidder previous to bidding and will be received by the selling officer on the day of sale. A deposit of Rs. 10 and authority is required from any person wishing to bid for any independent shop or any large number of shops. This will be reduced to Rs. 20 in the case of bidders for not more than two or three shops of an aggregate monthly value of Rs. 10 or less and to Rs. 5 in the case of bidders for single small shops. In the Karaikal district, the officer conducting the sale may, where he finds it necessary, require a deposit of Rs. 10 only from bidders for ankar shops. In the South Canara district, the selling officers may at their discretion reduce the deposit to Rs. 2 for shops whose average monthly rental does not exceed Rs. 5.

IV. The shops will be put up to auction in the order in which they are notified, unless the selling officer sees reason to change that order. Bids must be made at the discretion of the Collector. The reserve price placed by Government on the shops will not be published, but the average of the previous five years' rentals will be notified by the Collector, wherever possible, for the information of bidders.

V. No person will be allowed to bid for ankar unless he holds a power-of-attorney from him, on the ground that he has been authorized by a Colonial Court or has previously been guilty of such a breach of the conditions of a license or of a contract under the

as a holder of a license as on the ground that he is involved or to prevent arrangements to the detriment of Government interests or for any other valid reason. He may also refuse any bid which he may consider to be purely speculative, after recording his reasons for doing so. Village officers will not be allowed to bid for, or to have any direct interest in, shops for the sale of intoxicants.

VII. The shops will be knocked down by the highest bidder, but the sale will be subject to formal confirmation of the Collector, who shall be at liberty to accept or reject any bid at his discretion. Such formal confirmation will be tantamount to an acceptance of the bid, unless rescued by the Board of Revenue on special reasons, and will be necessary whether the sale be held by the Collector himself or by any officer appointed by him.

VIII. In case of dispute the selling officer's decision shall be final. If for any reason the highest bid is rejected, the next highest shall be taken, as the shop is sold as his direction.

IX. At the close of each day's sale, the deposits made by the successful bidders will be returned to them. As the auction proceeds, each person whose bid is accepted shall at once, if so required by the selling officer, or otherwise at the close of the day's sale, make a further deposit of half a month's rent, in addition to the deposit made under clause VII for each shop or the total deposit made or exceeds two months' rent. Should he fail to do so, the deposit made by him under clause VII will be forfeited and the shop will be put up again immediately by the selling officer on the same conditions or otherwise disposed of by the Collector and the defaulter will be detained from bidding again for the same or for any other shop.

X. Persons to whom shops have been knocked down and who have made deposits as provided in clauses VII and IX shall also deposit such further sum as will be the balance deposits will make up two months' rent (to be paid within ten days from the date of commencement of the Collector's experience of the bid) and shall, without unnecessary delay, execute the necessary arrangements and take on license on the conditions hereinafter set forth. In the case of the purchaser's death or other signing the agreement, it will be binding on his heirs and assigns. Should the total deposit exceed two months' rental, the excess will be refunded unless the purchaser is required to deposit until that sum under clause XI (a).

XI. If on request subsequent to sale the purchaser shall be found to be of doubtful solvency, he may be required either to deposit two months' rental in addition to the sum provided in clause X above, or to put a surety or sureties to secure a security bond for the due payment of all moneys that may become due by him under the terms of the contract. The bond shall be accepted (Article 54, Schedule I, Act II of 1867) and registered at the expense of the purchaser of the contract secured, except in the case of a surety.

XII. On the failure of any person to make deposit under clause X or to comply with the regulations under clause XI upon or to execute engagements and take on license as aforesaid, the deposits already made may be forfeited and the shop is sold under the orders of the District Officer on the terms notified by the Collector or otherwise disposed of by the latter officer.

XIII. Besides the total deposit under clause XII will be at the risk of the defaulting bidder, who will forfeit all gain, and, in the event of a loss, will be required to make good the deficiency between the total amount payable by the bidder under the terms of the original sale and the total amount payable by the successful bidder at the sale. In the latter case the forfeited deposits will be deducted from the loss arising from the sale, and the remainder, if any, will be refundable from the defaulter on the same manner as if it were an error of kind revenue. Should, however, the forfeited deposits be greater than the loss by sale, the whole of such deposits will be credited to Government. The defaulting bidder will be under no liability if the privilege is disposed of otherwise than by resale and such default results in loss to Government as compared with original sale.

XIV. The purchaser of the privilege is liable to the penalties provided for breaches of the conditions on both before, though a formal license may not have been issued to him.

XV. The deposit referred to in clause X or clause XI, as the case may be, will be taken as security for the due performance of the conditions of the license. If the defaulter fails to make the same, a sum may be credited towards the last installment of the rents payable by the latter.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The outbreak of the present war necessitated certain special legislation to meet the emergency created thereby. Action was taken by Ordinances under section 23 of the Indian Councils Act, 1902 (24 & 25 Vict., c. 67).

2. The Ordinances made in exercise of the power referred to are limited in duration to a period of six months. The present state of affairs requires that the duration of this emergency legislation should be prolonged. Accordingly the present Bill continues for the period of the war and for a period of six months thereafter the provisions of the Ordinances made since the outbreak of war.

3. It is clear that the actual cessation of hostilities will not coincide precisely with the disappearance of the conditions that led to the special legislation. In order to meet this point the Act, if the Bill becomes law, will continue to be in force for a definite period of six months after the termination of the war. Power is however reserved to the Governor General in Council to direct by notification that any provisions of the Ordinances may be declared to cease to be in force at any earlier date.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It is now settled by a long course of decisions of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and the Courts in India that a Hindu widow takes only a restricted estate in the property of her husband and that at her death such property passes to the heirs of her husband except as in such portion as may have been alienated by her for legal necessity. Alienations of her husband's estate or portions thereof for legal necessity, which include the payment of her husband's debts and other charges on the estate, such as the payment of maintenance to family members of the family, debts incurred by the widow for her own maintenance, debts incurred for the funeral obsequies of her husband and for other primary religious purposes, are valid and bind the actual reversioner according to the estate on the death of the widow. The propriety of these transactions is generally called into question only after the death of the widow several years after they are entered into, when most of the witnesses in regard to them had disappeared. This has operated very much both to the detriment of the widow and the purchasers. Even in cases where the widow had to dispose of the whole of her husband's estate or such portion as may be necessary for purposes recognized by law as affording a justification, the widow is not able in most cases to realize the full value of the property. The intending purchaser has at present no guarantee whatever that the transaction will not be called into question after the death of the widow and the widow is therefore driven to dispose of the property at much below its fair price which it would have fetched had the disposition been by a full owner. On the other hand, the purchaser is still liable to be sued by the reversioner after the death of the widow and the burden of making out the validity of the transaction is thrown on him many years after it takes place. Under the provisions of the British Indian Act, 1877 (40 and 41 Victoria, Ch. 84) and the Settled Land Act, 1882 (45 and 46 Victoria, Ch. 21), trustees for life and other limited owners are enabled to dispose of their properties under supervision of the Court after a full enquiry in the presence of all parties interested in the estate. These legislative safeguards existing under the English law afford the necessary protection to purchasers from limited owners, who are also thereby enabled to realize the full value of the properties sold. There are no legal limitations of the kind in this country in regard to limited owners, though there are analogous provisions in the Indian Acts in regard to transfers of property by mortgage and mortgage, execution and administration and a prohibition of suits. Two striking analogies of things have made the position of the widow, husband with the debts of her husband and widow as sole or joint owner of her husband's estate, very analogous. A large class of land suits in the Presidency are by reversions against limited owners and their widows or against widows after the death of the limited owner, calling in question the validity of the transactions entered into between them. Without interfering in any way with the existing law it is proposed in the present Bill to authorize limited owners to apply to the Court for permission for the sale of the property inherited by them after a full enquiry in the presence of the presumptive reversioners and for the application of the sale-proceeds for the liquidation of all debts and charges binding on the estate. It is open to the widow to take proceedings under the Act but when once that is done, finally it is given to the transaction under clause 12 and it cannot be questioned by the reversioner who may be alive at the death of the widow or by any other person. The procedure provided in the Bill will, it is believed, greatly reduce litigation by Hindu reversionary heirs, promote the speedy realization of all legitimate charges from the estates of deceased Hindus, facilitate the holding of an enquiry into all the grounds of alleged necessity as early as possible after the death of the full owner, secure better prices for the properties inherited by limited owners whenever it is necessary to sell them, and afford ample protection to purchasers from future harassing litigation and enable them to improve substantially the properties so purchased without the fear of being deprived of them by reversionsers.

2. It is often beneficial and even necessary in many cases for the limited owner to exchange a portion of the deceased estate owner's property for other property. If the party entering into the transaction was a full owner, he could effect the exchange without any difficulty, but there is a legal impediment in the way of the widow or other limited owner doing the same. The Hindu Law does not authorize a transfer by way of exchange by a limited owner and it has been held that she cannot make an alienation of the estate in order to improve it or even to develop the estate (19 Bombay Law Reporter, 507). For better enjoyment and equality, it is often necessary to enter into these transactions and a limited owner should not be placed at a disadvantage in this respect. Accordingly it is proposed in the Bill that, with the sanction of the Court and after a full enquiry, limited owners may be permitted to enter into these transactions, the new property being burdened with the same incidents and restrictions.

3. The law in regard to mortgages by limited owners is also equally unsatisfactory. In extending mortgages it has been the usual practice of the country to merely mention the particular legal necessity which has compelled the widow to borrow funds without expressly specifying whether her own life interest or the entire estate is hypothecated. It is open to the widow to pledge her own. Partial interest even for debts binding on the estate or to make it clear that she intends to bind the entire estate of the full estate owner for the amount secured by the mortgage. This question is most often raised only after a sale is held in execution proceedings. To find out what interest has actually passed to the purchaser it has been held that the pleadings, the document and on the facts and all subsequent execution proceedings will have to be scrutinized by the Court with a view to ascertain the intention of the parties. (I.L.R., 34 Bom. 188; 1 I.L.R., 23 Madras, 32.) There is therefore a great deal of uncertainty in finding out the interest disposed of at court sales where limited owners such as a widow or a daughter are judgment-debtors.

It is proposed in the proposed Bill to empower, with the permission of the Court, the limited owner to execute a mortgage or a lease for any purpose binding on the estate and that, in that event, the mortgage or lease will have the same effect as if it were executed by the full owner. The limited owner, the mortgagee and the lessee will, it is expected, be placed in a better position by this provision and intending purchasers will be relieved of the difficulty and expense now existing in regard to execution sales.

4. It is agreed in the Bill that the widow with the consent of reverentor the devisee of the Court have been equally conflicting. The four points that have arisen for consideration are—

(1) Whether the widow can alienate the whole or a portion of the estate with the consent of the nearest reverentor or should she obtain also the consent of the more remote reverentors than she?

(2) Whether the widow has this power of alienation independently of legal necessity and whether the consent of the nearest reverentor which is held to validate the alienation is merely evidence of the propriety of the transaction capable of being rebutted or whether such consent enables the widow as a matter of law to convey or her husband's estate absolutely without being liable to be questioned by the legal reverentor?

(3) Can the consent be obtained subsequent to the alienation?

(4) Can the widow surrender the life-estate to the then presumptive reverentor and, if so, should she surrender the whole estate? Would such a surrender terminate the reverentor and vest the husband's estate immediately in the presumptive reverentor abating out the more remote reverentors altogether?

5. As early as 1869 the Privy Council laid down the principle that an alienation which would not otherwise be legitimate may become so if made with the consent of her husband's blood (11 Moore's Indian Appeals, 559). In a later case they observed "that the husband in such a case must generally be understood to be all those who are likely to be interested in disposing the transaction. At all events there should be such a concurrence of the members of the family as suffice to make a presumption that the transaction was a bona fide one and not justified by Hindu Law" (13 Moore's Indian Appeals, 202). The application of the general principle thus enunciated has formed the subject of much conflict of views between the various High Courts in India and it is unnecessary to refer to them here. But it is now admitted by all the High Courts in India and the Privy Council that apart from legal necessity a Hindu widow has power to alienate the husband's estate with the concurrence of the presumptive reverentor help to sustain the persons who happen to be the actual reverentors when the alienation occurs at her death. (I.L.R. 30 Allahabad, 1, but see I.L.R. 49 Cal., 372). It has also been held that ordinarily the consent of the whole body of persons constituting the next reverentor should be obtained, though there may be cases in which special circumstances may render the strict enforcement of this rule impossible. In this preliminary conflicting division has been given by the High Court of Madras on these points. The legal aspect of the boundaries of the estate by the withdrawal of the widow's estate and of alienations by the widow with the consent of the presumptive reverentor was not kept sufficiently distinct (I.L.R. 31 Madras, 125, and the dissenting judgment of Wells, J., in I.L.R. 34 Madras, 78). It was held by the majority of the Judges in I.L.R. 34 Madras, 365, that if the widow was to make a valid alienation with the consent of the presumptive reverentor it must be of the whole estate (see also I.L.R. 33 Madras, 266). A different view that an alienation of a portion of the estate can be made by the widow with the consent of the presumptive reverentor was subsequently held by Judges Ayyar and Sundaram Ayyar, J., in 12 M.L.J., 335 (see also the judgment of Justice Ayyar, J., in 25 M.L.J. 81). It has been held by the other High Courts that an alienation without consideration but with the consent of reverentor is not valid against the actual reverentor (I.L.R. 34 Bombay, 183, I.L.R. 34 All., 129), but in Madras has been held (22 M.L.J. 483, M.W.N. 1912, 748, and 12 M.L.J. 280) that there is no distinction between an alienation for value and a gift and that both will be valid if consented to by the reverentors though without any justifiable necessity, though the Full Bench of the same Court in an earlier case seem to hold otherwise (I.L.R. 31 M., 360). In this state of things it is desirable in the interest of all parties to give some definiteness to the law on this subject. Clause 3 of the Bill embodies the existing law and has not enabled the widow to alienate the estate or any portion of it for value. This provision is not intended to enable the widow to withdraw her life estate in a portion of the estate of the full owner and the present law in regard to alienation of the estate by the withdrawal of the widow's life estate will not be touched by the Bill.

There are other cases of limited estates existing under the Hindu Law which are not so numerous as those arising from inheritance from males. There are, for example, estates arising from succession to children property where females take only a restricted estate. It has also been recently held that a woman's estate can be obtained by a Hindu female not only by inheritance but also by contract of parties, to a grant or by prescription (I.L.R. 36 Madras, 684). These are comparatively rare, but provision has been made for bringing them also within the purview of the Bill.

A few explanatory remarks on the clauses of the Bill are added hereunder—

Clause 1.—By section 4 of the Madras Inheritance Estates Act the position of the proprietor is defined as analogous to that of the surviving member of a joint Hindu family and the clauses of alienations permissible to the proprietors of the estates governed by that Act are expressly mentioned. It is therefore expressly stated in the explanation that the Bill does not apply to the estates governed by that Act.

Clause 2.—A limited owner as defined in the Bill includes a female heir succeeding to movable property. It has now been added that a female heir succeeding to immovable property may take a qualified estate (L.I.B., 25 Ali, 468 and 476). The definition also includes the holder of limited estates other than those arising by inheritance such as those created by an inter vivos or by will.

"Presumptive owner."—In cases where the immediate presumptive owner is a female, both the immediate female heir and the full owner who takes the estate after her are included in the definition.

The Court<sup>1</sup>—It is possible that doubts may arise as to whether civil courts in the Agency tracts will be within the jurisdiction of the courts in suits for possession of immovable property will, according to the definition, apply to the applications to the Court for sanction to transfer the estate or part of it. The application can therefore be made in the Court of the lowest grade exercising original civil jurisdiction.

Clause 3.—In cases where the immediate presumptive owner is a female, the consent of such owner in addition to that of the owner who would succeed to the estate after her death will also be necessary for transfers under this clause. This is intended to safeguard the interests of the full owner who is likely to succeed ultimately to the estate. The explanation is in accordance with the view of the Privy Council in L.I.B., 59 Ali, 1.

Clause 4.—Apart from transfers with the consent of the presumptive owner, this clause enables the Court on the application of the limited owner to sanction transfers after his death.

Clauses 5 to 7.—These clauses lay down the procedure of the Court in dealing with the application for permission to a limited owner to transfer the estate. They are intended to secure a full and fair disclosure of the condition of affairs and to secure a fair hearing for all parties interested in the matter. These provisions are analogous to those contained in the Guardians and Wards Act dealing with the applications by guardians for obtaining the sanction of the Court for the disposal of the properties of their wards and to the procedure provided under the Settled Estates Act, 1877, and Settled Land Act, 1882, in applications for sale under the orders of the Court of properties in the enjoyment of limited owners.

Clause 8.—It is desirable that the Court should have a wide latitude in dealing with the matters under consideration. It is therefore proposed to give ample power to the Court in dealing with applications by limited owners for sanctioning transfers. A Hindu widow not being a trustee, it is not proposed to fetter her liberty of action in dealing with the property, or with the application of the funds realised by the transfer. At the same time there may be cases where the widow and the intended transferee may desire to have the present debtors brought before the Court, or where the Court itself may come to the conclusion that it is desirable that the transaction should be completed under its control. This clause makes provision for these cases while at the same time not unduly interfering with the limited owner's powers in regard to properties in her enjoyment.

Clause 9.—This is a useful provision which will enable the Court to deal more effectively with the transfer of properties subject to mortgages or other encumbrances. It is similar to the provision in the Code of Civil Procedure dealing with suits relating to mortgages of immovable property.

Clauses 12 to 14.—These clauses define the nature of the interest transferred when a transfer takes place with the sanction of the Court and are required for the protection of purchasers and to secure fidelity to transactions entered into by limited owners with the approval of the Court.

Clause 15.—This clause is intended to enable holders of life estates to apply to the Court for sanction to effect transfers of immovable property so as to bind successors and remaindermen.
